

Ramon Barajas Jr. earned his BA in English in 1997. He earned his MLIS from San Jose State University in 2002. “My intentional goal was to go back to public libraries,” recalls Barajas. “I was going to get my MLS degree and become a librarian, but when I got to library school, I was placed in a law firm, at O’Melveny & Myers, as a library research assistant, and that opened my eyes to a whole new inden-U8.4 (o)48-9.6 (t)-20.8 (l(d m)-6.2 (y e)-20.7 (y)-6.2 (

Do you have suggestions for how diversity and inclusion efforts could be improved in law librarianship?